

NEW JERSEY CHAPTER AMERICAN CONCRETE INSTITUTE DINNER MEETING

DATE: TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 2010

PLACE: STAGE HOUSE RESTAURANT, Scotch Plains, NJ (directions on reverse side)

TOPIC: IMPORTANCE OF PERVIOUS CONCRETE EDUCATION

Pervious concrete is an innovative building material with many environmental, economic, and structural advantages. The proper utilization of pervious concrete is a recognized Best Management Practice by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for providing first-flush pollution control and stormwater management. Property owners and developers can also reduce fees and enhance the bottom line by using pervious concrete, which commonly provides 20+ years of service with little or no maintenance. Learn about the latest mix designs, freeze/thaw resistance, environmental benefits, stormwater management planning, and placement techniques. See examples of projects. Learn how pervious concrete can earn LEED points on your green building project.
